

WORST TO COME

General Alarm Expressed Over Flood Conditions

Refugees Are Pouring Into Memphis, Tenn., Today

River Is Slowly Rising and Flood Scenes of 1897 are Being Reenacted--People are Suffering Severe Privations--

Memphis, Tenn., March 12.—The Mississippi river gauge this morning showed 35.6 a rise of four-tenths of foot during the past 24 hours, and 2.6 feet over the danger line. The river is still rising slowly and the authorities look for a stage of 37 feet by tomorrow morning. Refugees are pouring in rapidly, some steamers bringing as many as 150 persons, some of them suffering the severest privations. Some who were in good circumstances in their homes have been forced by the spreading waters to leave everything behind. The Sunshine Society and other charitable organizations are trying to alleviate their sufferings. All the flood scenes of 1897 are being reenacted and the number of refugees is increasing at a startling rate. The worst is yet to come and the alarm is becoming general.

weak to move. The river continues to rise and stands 46.85 or 2.85 above the danger line.

Huntington, W. Va., March 12.—The Ohio river had a stage of 43.6 feet here at 9 o'clock today. This is a rise of little more than two feet in 24 hours.

Cincinnati, O., March 12.—Refugees from the flood are arriving in large numbers at Memphis and New Orleans.

The old levee near Caruthersville, Mo., is said to be caving in.

Several levees on White river near Hazelton, Ind., broke and as a result hundreds of families are homeless.

If the river rises another foot at Memphis disaster seems certain. Great damage has already been done by the flood in Mississippi.

New Orleans, March 12.—It is generally admitted by the government, state and city officials that the Mississippi river will in all probability break all records before the present flood begins to recede.

All the levee lines are being thoroughly inspected by a large force of men who are at work day and night to strengthen weak places and guard the banks by night and day.

Though all the authorities admit that a record stage is probable they maintain that the levee system is higher and stronger than ever before and that the banks are prepared to withstand the extra strain.

WARRANT

Issued for Arrest of Prominent Kentucky Man Who Has Apparently Left the City.

Frankfort, Ky., March 12.—Not since 1888, when State Treasurer Tate absconded has Frankfort been in such a flutter of excitement as yesterday when it became known that L. B. Weisenburg, proprietor of the Idle Royal Mills, had apparently left the city owing the four banks a large sum of money, probably over $50,000 without any surety, or collateral except warehouse receipts calling for some 80,000 bushels of wheat, when as a matter of fact it is estimated that the Royal Mills buildings, used as a wheat storehouse, has less than 20,000 bushels of wheat in it. Mr. Weisenburg could not be found, and his family had no knowledge of his whereabouts. The officers of the various banks were hurrying about the city, holding frequent conferences with each other and inquiring closely into the condition of Weisenburg's finances.

A warrant for Weisenburg's arrest was issued on an affidavit sworn to by young Dudley Blanton.

BURGLARS

Got $20 From Private Safe But Secured Nothing at the Postoffice Bluffton, Ind.

Bluffton, Ind., March 12.—The town of Ossian, 10 miles from here, was visited by burglars last night. The drug store of W. M. Main was entered the safe broken and about $200 secured. The postoffice was also entered but nothing was taken. The robbers stole a Lake Erie railway handcar at Snelton, four miles from Ossian, and it was found near Fort Wayne today.

The lumber companies of Snelton have formed a trust.

UNKNOWN

Steamer Believed to Have Been Lost North of Frisco—Tugs Sent To the Scene.

San Francisco, March 12.—An unknown steamer is believed to have sunk last night off Point Reyes, twenty miles north of here. The look-out at Reyes station saw distress signals for a half hour two miles off shore. Suddenly the lights went out and the vessel disappeared. Tugs were sent to the scene and returned at 4 o'clock this morning but found no trace of the vessel, which may be either the Steamer James Dollar or the Chicago from Seattle or the Columbia from Portland.

LIMITED

Collided With Freight Train in Nebraska at Midnight But Only One Was Killed.

Omaha, Neb., March 12.—The Overland limited, Union Pacific passenger train eastbound, collided with freight train No. 2, at Gilmore, Nebraska, a few miles west of here about midnight. Fireman Hayes of the freight train was the only one killed. The injured are: James Taylor of Omaha, engineer of the passenger; Otal, of Omaha, fireman of the passenger and an unknown tramp. A number of passengers were shaken up badly but none were seriously injured. A mistake in orders caused the wreck.

Willing to Compromise.
Mamma—Oh, you had boy! Where have you been all this time? Don't you think you should be ashamed to worry your mother so?
The Boy—Well, ma, I'm willing to be ashamed that I forced your if you'll please not to tell pa anything. Don't worry me—Philadelphia Press.

CUBAN TREATY

REPORTED WITH AN AMENDMENT THURSDAY

Adoption of Amendment is a Distinct Democratic Victory—It Insures Ratification of Treaty.

Washington, March 12.—The Cuban Reciprocity treaty was reported favorably from the Senate committee on foreign relations today, with an amendment providing that its provisions should be concurred in by the House. The adoption of this amendment is a distinct Democratic victory and is the first fruits of Senator Gorman's leadership. It insures, it is believed, the ratification of the treaty at the present session of the Senate although it will not go into effect until after the House has adopted a resolution expressing its concurrence in the tariff reductions provided in the treaty. This, it is expected, will be one of the first acts of the next congress.

Washington, March 12.—The nomination of W. D. Crum, negro, to be collector of customs at Charleston, S. C., was not acted upon by the Senate committee on commerce at this morning's session. It went over because of the absence of Republican members.

Washington, March 12.—A formal agreement for vote on the Panama canal treaty has been reached and was made public today by the Senate. It provides for fifteen minutes debate on each side on the amendments during Monday and Tuesday, the final vote on ratification of the treaty to be had Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Morgan is to be allowed to make public speeches.

UNCONSCIOUS

Guests Were Dragged From a Burning Hotel in Chicago—Panic Followed Discovery.

Chicago, March 12.—Firemen fought their way through smoke that filled half of the Yorkshire Hotel in Wabash avenue at 2:30 o'clock this morning, and dragged a score of unconscious guests from their rooms and carried them to safety. A panic followed the discovery of the flames and cries of fire. Scores of guests clad only in their night clothing ran through the hallways to the elevators and down stairs. Others became unconscious before they could reach the stairways; loss, small.

JUSTICE DAY

Is Now Quite Sick His Temperature Thursday Going Up to 104—Friends Alarmed.

Washington, March 12.—Associate Justice William R. Day of the Supreme court of the United States, who has been ill for several days at the Arlington, took a turn for the worse this morning. His temperature going up to 104. Senator Hanna, who is a close friend of Justice Day, regards his condition as serious.

STRIKE

Agreement Reached by Massillon District Thursday—It Begins on April First.

Massillon, O., March 12.—The district will strike April 1, a decision being reached this morning. The miners demand a four foot vein of coal with an increase in price of nine cents per ton for every three inch in under that thickness. Two thousand miners are involved.

CONDITION

OF BERIAH WILKINS IS STILL CRITICAL

Doctors Announce that the Patient is Regaining Consciousness—His Left Side is Paralyzed.

New York, March 12.—It was said at the Waldorf-Astoria this morning that Hon. Beriah Wilkins, proprietor of the Washington Post, whose left side was paralyzed Tuesday, was regaining consciousness. His condition is still critical.

ALLISON PLAN

OF LIMITING DEBATE ON THE SENATE

Reported by Committee and Amendment is Offered by Mr. Pratt—The Panama Treaty.

Washington, March 12.—The Senate today received from the committee on audit and control contingent expenses a favorable report on the Allison resolution, directing the committee on rules to investigate the expediency of limiting debate in the Senate. The resolution was agreed to without objection. Mr. Pratt, Conn., presented an amendment. It provided that by a three-fifths vote of the Senators present and acting an order could be adopted limiting debate upon the bill, treaty or other measure and fixing the time for taking a vote thereon. The amendment went over one day under the rules. At 12:06 o'clock the doors were closed and consideration of the Panama canal treaty was resumed.

Attempt to Wreck.

South Bethlehem, Pa., March 12.—An attempt was made last night to wreck the Lehigh Valley express No. 29, one mile west of here. Switches were broken and ties placed on the track. Many passengers were aboard. The automatic signals showed danger and the engineer stopped the train in time to avert an accident. Tramps are blamed.

There is evidence at Columbus that Rufus Cantrell, the confessed grave robber of Indiana, is operating in Columbus and other central Ohio cities. It is said that a young lady at Springfield, Day, Lancaster and Mansfield contributed their share of bodies which were furnished the medical colleges by a man now living in Columbus. Medical schools at Columbus use from 50 to 100 bodies a year and including the calling of the state 700 to 800 are required for a section. The Columbus people are quietly wondering whether the bodies have been sold.

CONTEST

AGAINST APOSTLE SMOOT HAS BEEN ABANDONED

Illfounded Charges of Polygamy Weakened Case of Ministers Who Were Opposing Him.

Salt Lake City, Utah, March 12.—The fight against Apostle Reed Smoot, whose credentials have just been accepted by the senate, has been abandoned.

It is doubtful if the protests to the senate committee will ever come to the surface.

This news has been brought from Washington by Congressman Sutherland, who has been a leader in the fight.

The ministers lay the blame for the Smoot victory at the door of the Rev. Dr. Leitch, who preferred the polygamy charges against Smoot.

This charge the ministers admitted would not hold water. Congressman Sutherland said: "Senator Smoot denied at once that he had more than one wife."

"This caused many senators to believe Leitch's affidavit was not well grounded and weakened the other protest."

TRUCK DRIVERS

WERE ATTACKED BUT NOBODY SERIOUSLY HURT

Two Women Took the Strikers' Places at Kansas City—The Toledo Strike is Extended.

Kansas City Mo., March 12.—A number of non-union truck drivers were attacked today but none was seriously hurt. A large number of wagons have police escorts. Two women drove trucks today. Mrs. George Evans wife of an employer, attired in a neat tailor made costume, made several trips with one of her husband's heaviest trucks. She was not molested. The other woman is Mrs. H. S. Meyers, wife of a striker. Meyers had been persuaded to leave his wagon laden with machinery when his wife appeared. She endeavored to get him to change his mind and faunting, mounted the box and drove away.

Toledo, O., March 12.—Union team drivers this morning caused their strike to extend by calling out all the men employed by Contractor Wolover in hauling coal from a prominent coal firm, which supplies fuel to a number of large manufacturing concerns.

The strikers were assembled at headquarters this morning and warned against violence of any kind and none has been reported.

RECIPROCITY

Treaty Was Ratified by Cuba at Havana the Vote Being Sixteen to Five.

Havana, March 12.—The senate by a vote of 16 to 5 ratified the reciprocity treaty with the United States.

Fifteen Republican conservatives or administration senators and one Nationalist, voted in favor of the treaty and five Nationalists against it.

There were three absentees, all of whom, it is believed, favored the treaty.

The ratification required only a majority vote, so that there were three votes to spare.

King Is Coming.

Buff., N. Y., March 12.—President Franklin D. Roosevelt, who is expected to visit the St. Louis exposition, had a private interview yesterday with Baron Goffinet, King Leopold's private secretary. The interview was regarding the King's proposed trip to America. Baron Goffinet assured Francis that Leopold intended to visit the exposition.

MRS. PENNELL DIES

Theory of Suicide Shaken By Day's Developments

Picture of Pennell's Distress of Mind Since the Murder

Burdick Made Prophecy That Pennell Would Kill Himself--Two Tragedies Not Connected--Say the Police--Experts Examine the Auto.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 12.—Mrs. Arthur Pennell died at the hospital last night from injuries received when her husband accidentally drove his automobile into a stone quarry, killing himself instantly. She never recovered consciousness. A faint twitching of the eyelids or a murmur of pain were the only signs of returning consciousness perceptible during the 24 hours the injured woman was in the hospital.

Her brother arrived from New Haven, Conn., but before he reached the hospital Mrs. Pennell's pulse ceased to beat.

Except for a few incoherent words when she was first taken to the hospital Mrs. Pennell did not speak after the accident.

The automobile which carried Mr. Pennell and his wife in the plunge to the bottom of the stone quarry on Kensington avenue was carefully examined.

The brakes and levers were given particularly close attention. The result of the examination left no doubt in the minds of any of the men present that Mr. Pennell did everything in his power to regain control of the vehicle when it careened.

The brakes were tightly set, the power indicator pointed to "reverse," and the track of the wheels in the soft earth on the ridge between the street pavement and the quarry showed that the wheels were turning backward when the machine sped forward to destruction.

It was decided that the bodies of both Mr. and Mrs. Pennell should be taken to Brunswick, Me., for burial.

At 8 o'clock J. Fred Pennell, Mr. Lamb and Thomas Pennell, ex-district attorney and a former partner of Mr. Pennell, went to the Austin building and searched the desk of the dead man.

A policeman who has been on guard ever since the fatal accident occurred, stood by while the search was made. A number of documents were found, including a will of recent date. The provisions of the will were not given out.

FATHER SCOUTS THE THEORY THAT IT WAS SUICIDE.

St. Louis, Mo., March 12.—Before he received news of the death of his daughter, Mrs. Carrie Pennell, Winslow M. Lamb started for Buffalo. Mr. Lamb said when told the story of Pennell's death and Mrs. Pennell's injury: "I don't believe the suicide theory. I believe that Arthur would have vindicated himself in any connection with the Burdick murder, when the time came. My daughter has been a hint in this case, and had he been guilty she would not have done so."

"The legacy my daughter received was $144,000."

TWO TRAGEDIES NOT CONNECTED, SAY POLICE.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 12.—Chief of Police Ball said that the police had not examined Pennell's papers and personal property in an effort to find any evidence to connect the dead lawyer with the killing of Edwin T. Burdick.

The police do not intend to make any search of Pennell's papers. "I do not think the Pennell accident has any bearing on the Burdick case," said Chief Ball.

"The investigation will go on at it did before."

PENNELL'S DEATH WAS FORETOLD.

Buffalo, March 12.—A rich man beat en to death at midnight in his own house; 12 days of mystery enfolded mystery, with scores of police detectives and newspaper men treading a labyrinth of divorce proceedings and strange love in the hunt for the murderer, and finally the man suspected above all others—he who had the strongest motive to kill—riding with his wife in an automobile over a cliff to death in the rough quarry below! Not even the horrors of Poe's imagination furnishes such a picturesquely terrible story as these plain facts in the great Burdick murder case at Buffalo.

That final scene in the gray twilight with Arthur R. Pennell and his over the edge of the rocky pit, while a newspaper man waited for him to come back to his home and face newly discovered evidence, the plunge of the swift automobile, the screams of Mrs. Pennell and the horrified roadside boy clambering down among the rocks to find a dead man and a dying woman—it sounds like a page from Victor Hugo.

Now there are three deaths to explain. Mrs. Pennell who told the police that her husband was at home on the night of the murder, is dead.

Pretty, witty, clinging Mrs. Paine, the dentist's wife, who has been so closely watched and so sharply questioned by the police, still dwells under semi-surveillance in her house, a four minutes' walk from the scene of the murder.

That wild plunge to death in the stone quarry has riven the veil a little. Now we hear Mr. Pennell was in an agony of anxiety, that he sat in his law office day after day in an almost hysterical condition, fearing to remain silent lest it might be thought that he had broken down under the strain. Innocent or guilty, he found it hard to keep up an appearance of confidence.

The situation at the time of Pennell's death was entirely dramatic and suggestive. He had been the shadow on Mr. Burdick's home and the latter hired private detectives, secured evidence and sued his wife for divorce, naming the young lawyer as co-respondent.

Mrs. Burdick left her husband, her children and her mother, and went to live at Atlantic City. Thither Pennell went also. The two were seen together. These facts were known to the injured husband. He pressed for suit for divorce and amended the complaint. Mrs. Burdick answered to her husband's suit with a counter claim for divorce, with Mrs. Warren, a divorced woman of Buffalo, O., and Jane Doe of Buffalo, named as co-respondents.

"I do not think Pennell will live long. It would not surprise me to hear any day that he had committed suicide." That is E. J. Burdick's prophecy made to friends shortly before his death.

When Pennell's clothes were searched after his death the police found a poem entitled "Prepared."

GRAMPER.

Grandfather's old an' rheumatically some, 'Talek in his heartin' an' fallin' in sight; Can't chew no more of his bread than the crumb; But he's a hustler, is Gramper, all right. 'Tup an' a-comin' an' chaper an' gay. If he can't do a day's work he has found he can be useful in man's way— 'Tixin' an' patchin' an' putterin' round. If there's a fence board that's anywhere down, Gramper's on hand, with a hatchet and nail; Drives the old mare in the buckboard to town. Solvers the leak in the tin milkin' pail; Cuts up the early persters for sale; Says that the straps in the harness is sound; Tosses for the wimmen folks all that they need— 'Tixin' an' patchin' an' putterin' round. Grandfather's old, but there's lots he can do. Bustles man on the homestead, you bet! Done his day's work, but he ain't no ways through; Good for the chores of the evenday yet. Rest time's a-comin', though; soon he will be soundly enough in the cemetery ground, but 'twill be lonesome. We'll miss him a heap— 'Tixin' an' patchin' an' putterin' round. —Chicago Daily News.

Her Nose.
Marshall P. Wilder was talking to a friend one night just outside Weber & Fields' when two pretty chorus girls waited for a moment beside him. "You should have seen the way that man we have just passed stared at me," said the prettiest of the two to the humorist. "He was probably watching your nose. You see, he's a reporter and is supposed to keep his eyes on everything that turns up," spitefully remarked her companion. Wilder didn't have to say anything that time.—New York Times.

Thought Best to Tell Him.
Mr. Topham, having come into possession of more money than he could conveniently spend, had hit upon the idea of having a bust of himself made and was negotiating with a sculptor. "Could you make it heroic size?" he suggested. "Yes, I can make it that way if you want it," said the sculptor, "but it—er—won't look natural."—Chicago Tribune.

Made to Match.
The fair divorcee, who had been three times married and was now preparing to star, was the center of attraction. "Her gown is very decollete, don't you think?" some one asked. "Yes," was the reply; "it's cut that way to match her morals, which are also very decollete."—Chicago Post.

Senator Pettus and His New Suit.
Senator Pettus, who is eighty-two years old and who always wears a long, black broadcloth frock coat of antebellum cut and a pair of baggy trousers, recently appeared in a jaunty new suit, says the Washington correspondent of the New York World. The senate was astounded. Senator Pettus failed to see why there was any consternation and rebuked Senator Depew severely for intimating he was becoming a dude. "Fact is," said Senator Pettus, "I have just been re-elected, and I consider it my privilege to get a new suit of clothes. I'll get another when I am re-elected again in 1909."

Business.
Merchant—Did you find out what that gentleman wanted?
New Clerk—No, but I found out what he didn't want.
Merchant—What? How dare you—
New Clerk—And I sold it to him.—Catholic Standard and Times.

Benefits of Foreign Travel.
"How did your husband enjoy his visit to the Alhambra?" inquired the friend of the family.

makes childbirth easy by preparing the system for parturition and thus shortening labor. The continual rubbing of its terrors, and the danger lessened to both mother and child; the time of confinement is shortened, the mother rested, and child fully developed, strong and healthy. Morning sickness, or nausea arising from pregnancy, is prevented by its use. A pregnancy advances, the breasts enlarge, become swollen and hard. Long before the child is born, they are preparing for the secretion of milk. It is important that they receive early attention. Mother's Friend softens the skin and facilitates the secretion of Life Fluid. Undeveloped breasts, hardened shortly after delivery, are the result of non-treatment, and likely to culminate in Mammary Abscess, from which so many suffer excruciating pain and are left with these organs permanently impaired. Mother's Friend, when used as directed, prevents the milk from becoming too thick and clogging the ducts, thus bringing comfort and ease to the mother. It is a safe and reliable remedy. Try it. A MARVELOUS THEORY

The Universe Made For Man Alone, Says Dr. Wallace.

EARTH AT THE CENTER OF ALL.

Famous English Scientist Expounds Startling Views, Stating That the Inhabitants of This World of Ours Were the Cause of Creation—Stars Limited in Number.

Dr. Alfred Russel Wallace, the eminent scientist, who was credited by Darwin himself with having discovered the theory of natural selection, has again centered the attention of the scientific world upon himself by a remarkable article in the Fortnightly Review for March. In this he advances the startling theory that the earth, or solar system, is the physical center of the stellar system and adds that the supreme end and purpose of this vast universe are the production and development of the living soul in the perishable body of man, says a special cable dispatch from London to the New York American.

This attempt to unite religion and science is entitled "Man's Place in the Universe," and, while it is impossible here to give in full the absorbingly interesting details of Dr. Wallace's theory, the chief features may be outlined.

Dr. Wallace recalls that to the early astronomers the earth was the center of the visible universe, but that as progressive knowledge of astronomy further enlightened men of science they were driven to the other extreme. Recent astronomy reduces the importance of the earth to comparative insignificance by enlarging upon the vastness, variety and complexity of the stellar universe. It is also recalled that modern skepticism points out the difficulty of believing that the Creator of all selected one of the smallest of his created orbs as the scene for the tremendous sacrifice of his Son in the scheme of redemption.

Dr. Wallace's first question is, "Are the stars infinite in number?" By a fascinating argument, in which he covers the progress made in astronomy during the past fifty years, he establishes a strong case in favor of the limited extent of the stellar universe, quoting, by the way, Professor Newcomb and others, who affirm that if the number of stars was infinite their combined light would be fully equal to the sun at midday, while as a matter of fact starlight is but one-fortieth as powerful as moonlight. His conclusions on this point are:

The result so far reached by astronomers as to the direct logical conclusions from the whole mass of facts accumulated by means of powerful instruments of research, which have given us the new astronomy, is that our sun is one of the central stars of a globular star cluster and that this star cluster occupies nearly the central position in the exact plane of the Milky Way, but I am not aware that any writer has taken the next step and, combining these two conclusions, has stated definitely that our sun is shown to occupy a position very near if not actually at the center of the whole visible universe and therefore, in all probability, in the center of the whole material universe.

This conclusion no doubt is a startling one, and all kinds of objections will be made against it, yet I am not acquainted with any great inductive result of modern science that has been arrived at so gradually, so legitimately, by means of so vast a mass of precise measurements and observations and by such wholly unprejudiced workers. It may not be proved with minute accuracy as regards the actual mathematical center. That is not of the least importance, but that it is substantially correct there seems to be no good reason of doubt, and I therefore hold it right and proper to have it so stated and provisionally accepted until further accumulations of evidence may show to what extent it requires modification.

Passing from this part of his subject, Dr. Wallace takes up our position in the solar system itself as regards adaptability for organic life. "Here, too," he says, "I am not aware that the whole facts have been sufficiently considered, yet there are facts that indicate our position in this respect to be as central and unique as that of the sun in the stellar universe."

His conclusion on this point is: The three startling facts that we are in the center of a cluster of stars and that that cluster is situated not only precisely in the plane of the Milky Way, but also centrally in that plane, can hardly now be looked upon as chance coincidences. They have significance in relation to the culminating fact that the planet so situated has developed humanity. Of course the relation here pointed out may be a true relation of cause and effect and yet have arisen as the result of one in a thousand million chances occurring during almost infinite time; but, on the other hand, those thinkers may be right who, holding that the universe is a manifestation of mind and that the orderly development of living souls supplies an adequate reason why such a universe should have been called into existence, believe that we ourselves are its sole and sufficient result and that nowhere else than near the central position in the universe which we occupy could that result have been attained.

England's Food Supply.
An association has been formed by some of the most prominent men in England to force parliament to authorize the formation of a royal commission which shall investigate the question of feeding England in time of war, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. In a recent manifesto it is pointed out that more than half of the 41,000,000 who make the population of the country have an income which averages less than 50 shillings a week. Seven million do not average 25 shillings. In case of war even the fear of shortage would immediately bring food to famine prices, and it would be but a short time before the conditions became intolerable. The idea of this new association is the ultimate establishment of great granaries which would hold a reserve supply of food.

THE GOOD LITTLE BEAR.

How Polly at Grandma's Suggestion Made the Whole Family Happy.

"I feel as cross as a bear!" said Polly as she came in from school. "Then you have a good chance to make the family happy," and grandma smiled.

"Your mother has a headache, the baby wants to be amused and little brother is fretful. A cross bear will make him cry, and then the baby will cry, too, and that will make your mother's headache worse, and"— "Why, grandma, what do you mean?" interrupted Polly.

"Oh, I haven't finished what I want to say. That is what a cross bear will do, but a good natured bear can make Jamie laugh, and then perhaps Jamie will make the baby laugh, and if your mother hears them perhaps her head won't ache so badly, and if she grows better it will surely make papa smile when he comes home, and if papa smiles I shall be happy too."

"All right," said Polly. "You'll see what a good natured bear can do." She went into the nursery and, capered so comically that Jamie laughed with delight. Then she took his hand, and they danced back and forth before the baby, sitting in her high chair, and Jamie's laugh was soon echoed by little May.

Mother heard the happy little voices through the closed door and said to grandma, "It is better than medicine to hear those dear children."

"That is what I told Polly," replied grandma. At the tea table papa said, "It is such a comfort to find mamma's headache is really better," and he smiled at Polly, while grandma beamed at both of them as she poured the tea.

"It's like a 'Mother Goose' story," said Polly. "The bear began to please the little brother, the little brother began to amuse the baby, the baby began to cure the mother, the mother began to comfort the father, the father began to cheer the grandma, the grandma—she began it all!" and Polly stopped for want of breath.—Youth's Companion.

Killing Ants With Cannon.
Artillery charged with grapeshot has been employed to destroy great hordes of termites, or warrior ants, have made in many tropical countries.

In South Africa the termites work enormous havoc. They live in a republic of their own, and some of them have wings. The workmen, the soldiers and the queens, however, have none.

The workmen construct their buildings, the soldiers defend the colony and keep order and the females, or queens, are cared for by all the others. These become, in point of fact, mere egg laying machines which have to remain tied to one spot.

Their nesting homes are often twenty feet high and pyramidal in shape. Cattle climb upon them without crushing them. A dozen men can find shelter in some of their chambers, and native hunters often lie in wait inside them when out after wild animals.

The ants construct galleries which are as wide as the bore of a large cannon and which run three or four feet underground. The nests are said to be 500 times as high as the ant's body, and it has been estimated that if we built our houses on the same scale they would be four times as high as the pyramids of Egypt.

Game of Little Words.
While one leaves the room the others agree upon a word, as "the," "you," "yes" or "no," or any of the small words that do not contain more than four letters. When the person is readmitted he or she asks a question of each one, and the chosen word must be given by all in their answers. Suppose the word "and" is selected; and the question should be this:

"Do you think we shall have snow today?"

"I hope so, for I long to see it snow, and I am very fond of snowballs." Then to the next one she might say: "You are fond of snowballs also?" "Yes, when there is a large party of us, and they are all very merry."

The questioner will notice that there are three little words in the last answers, "and," "of" and "very," that are in the first; therefore, in the next answer she must remember which of these three words are repeated again; so in this manner she will soon be able to find the right word. But if unable to guess it she must leave the room again while another is chosen.

The player by means of whose answer the word is guessed must be the next to withdraw, while the others fix upon a word to be guessed as before.

BATH CURE FOR LEPROSY.
Consul at Canton Reports Triumph of American Physician.
From Canton, China, comes the announcement of United States Consul McWade that an American physician, Dr. Adolf Razlag, has discovered and demonstrated by experiment a cure for the hitherto incurable disease of leprosy, says a Washington dispatch to the New York Tribune. This cure receives the endorsement of Consul McWade, who declares that he has personally followed the treatment as administered to four patients and has seen three return to their business perfectly cured. The foundation of this discovery is in baths.

SYRUP OF FIGS

Acts Gently;
Acts Pleasantly;
Acts Beneficially;
Acts truly as a Laxative.

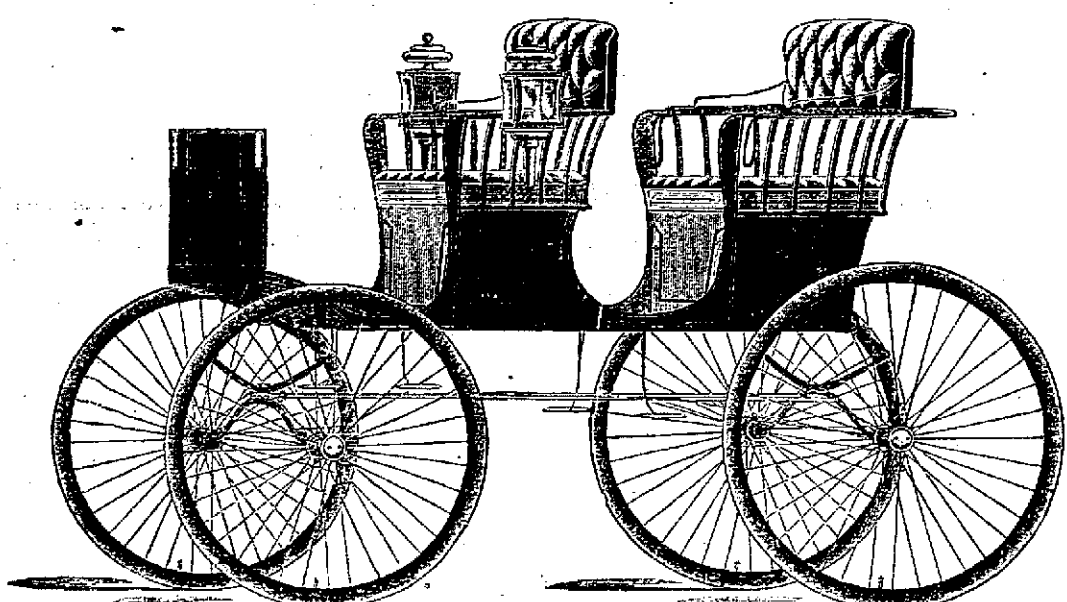

Syrup of Figs appeals to the cultured and the well-informed and to the healthy, because its component parts are simple and wholesome and because it acts without disturbing the natural functions, as it is wholly free from every objectionable quality or substance. In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal virtues of Syrup of Figs are obtained from an excellent combination of plants known to be medicinally laxative and to act most beneficially. To get its beneficial effects—buy the genuine—manufactured by the

CLEW TO STRANGER

Who Jumped Off the Second Street Bridge Tuesday Night.

Police Saw Man Monday and Tuesday Who Tallies With the Description Given--The Body Has Not Yet Been Recovered However.

It is now accepted as a fact, that the story told by John Siegel and Frank, Carl and Paul Wolverton, relative to seeing a man jump from the Second street bridge into the waters below, was true in every particular. The police have placed the man and now know who it was, but his name is not known, nor where his home is.

On Monday afternoon a stranger who had been seen in town for a day or two, approached Officers Zergiebel and Carroll, and talked for sometime with them. He said he was a telegraph operator and was going to work at Clay Lick. He said he had been a fireman in Columbus under Chief Heinmiller. The man was about 5 feet 8 1/2 inches tall, rather stout, very dark complexioned and full round face. When last seen he had a several day growth of beard turning gray, wore a light suit of clothes of cheap texture, with brown stripes, and appeared to be on the verge of mania, not from excessive drinking.

The man's description as given by David Stauch, tallies exactly with that of the man that officers Zergiebel and Carroll had a talk with Monday and again on Tuesday, and the police are confident the men are the same. Stauch is the last man to have seen the stranger, and all day Wednesday nothing was seen of him at the places he haunted Monday and Tuesday.

Those who saw and talked with the stranger, who is undoubtedly drowned in the south fork of the Licking, say that he was a man of superior intelligence and refined bearing, who had evidently been on a spree. Being on the verge of delirium he plunged into the torrent and ended his troubles.

ROLAND

LODGE K. OF P. ENJOYS A SOCIAL SESSION

Over Two Hundred Guests Were Present--A Musical and Literary Program Carried Out Wednesday.

Roland Lodge 305, Knights of Pythias, which is noted for its knightly courtesy and hospitality, fairly broke its record on Wednesday night in the way of entertaining. The occasion was the annual social session of Roland Lodge, which was held in its elegant headquarters in the Ankele block.

Over two hundred guests filled the spacious lodge rooms comfortably, and a grand time was had. Mr. William Beutlich, Chancellor Commander, was Master of Ceremonies. The following enjoyable program of musical and literary exercises was rendered to the satisfaction of all:

Music—String Quartet, etc.
Prayer—Rev. Mr. Eger.
Address of Welcome—Harry Scott.
Piano Solo—Miss Russi of Zanesville.

Recitation—"When Father Rode the Goat"—Miss Florence Vanatta.

Violin Solo—Miss Shutz, Miss Cora Coleman accompanist.

Recitation—Mr. Hamilton.

Illustrated Song—Miss Tawney, Miss Mabel Glenn accompanist.

Damon and Pythias—Illustrated—P. L. Pratt.

Piano Solo—Miss Hirschberg.

Recitation—Mr. Hamilton.

Delicious refreshments were served at the close of the program, and interesting remarks were made by a number of those who were present.

During the evening Miss Tawney sang several beautiful solos and Prof. Hamilton recited in his inimitable style.

Too much credit cannot be given to Roland Lodge and to the committee having the social session in charge—Knights C. L. Vanatta, P. L. Pratt, Eugene Wolinsky and Henry Gartner for the entire success of the evening's entertainment.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT.

The Travelers And the Keg

One day as Two Travelers were passing along a highway in company they discovered a keg that had fallen from the wagon of some Carter without being missed.

"I was just wishing for a drink of cognac, and, behold, it is at hand!" exclaimed one.

"I was thinking of claret, and the gods have brought me gallons of it," added the other.

"You have only to look at the keg to know that it is cognac."

"And you have only to smell of it to be assured that it is claret."

"You certainly are a stupid man."

"And you are little short of a fool."

A minute later their language had become so abusive that they rushed forward and were engaged in lambasting each other when the Carter returned for his lost keg and bore it away. Having bestowed many blows and kicks, the combatants finally separated, and as a Peasant came out of his field the first appealed to him:

"My friend, will you not agree with me that the keg contained cognac?"

"He must surely agree with me that its contents was claret," added the second.

"Mr friends," replied the Peasant, "the keg contained neither cognac nor claret, but cider vinegar, as you could have soon learned, and you are not even now in possession of that."

Moral—He who quarrels with his luck will end in having no luck at all.

The Druggist's Help

When sick you want the best physician, and the best physician requires the aid of the best druggist. Pharmacy is now a more exacting science than it used to be. New discoveries, new remedies and new ideas require the modern druggist to be up to date.

This is a thoroughly modern store. It exemplifies all that is latest and best on the professional side of pharmacy. Those who are careful in their drug buying, who want to feel secure, can find good reason for bringing us their prescriptions.

GRANVILLE

CHARLES TWINING MEETS WITH SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Democratic Nomination Saturday Night—President's New House—Grist of Interesting Items.

Granville, O., March 12—Charles Twining, a prominent farmer residing a short distance south of Granville while assisting in loading a heavy boiler for a gas drilling machine, on Wednesday afternoon, slipped and fell and the 5,200 pound boiler struck him on the ankle crushing several of the small bones. His injuries were attended to by a Granville physician.

The Democrats of Granville and Granville township will meet at the Town Hall on Saturday evening for the purpose of nominating candidates for the spring election. It is the general opinion that a full ticket should be placed in the field.

The work of constructing the new house for the President of Denison college is rapidly progressing. The plasterers will begin the work of plastering the rooms this week, using a new kind of fibre plaster. When complete the building will be a modern, up-to-date structure of which any college might be justly proud.

Messrs. Baily & Keely, contractors of Newark, are engaged in putting on the slate roof of the new Beta house this week. The roof has been raised three feet, giving the building full three stories. When completed the structure will be one of the finest and most convenient in Granville.

The regular session of Center Star Lodge No. 11, F. & A. M., was held on Wednesday night. There was a good attendance of the members, and the Fellow Craft degree was conferred on Dr. C. L. Work, pastor of the Presbyterian church.

The Denison in its last issue published an interesting sketch of Judge Ferris, of the Superior Court, of Cincinnati. The Judge who graduated with the class of '72 of Denison, is well remembered by the older people of Granville. He has always taken great interest in everything pertaining to the welfare of Denison.

The work submitted for the Adytum Prize Contest this year has been exceptionally good. Prizes have been awarded as follows: Best Short story Ruth E. McIlbenn, best poem, C. C. Patterson; best single sketch, Amy J. Dodson; best set of sketches, E. M. Jones. The prizes are $5.00 in every case except for the set of sketches, which is $10.

Mrs. Bond and daughter Miss Louise are the guests of Mrs. Bond's sister, Mrs. Hunt, wife of Dr. E. W. Hunt, President of Denison University.

Bert Mitchell, colored, has been confined to his home during the past week with a severe attack of grip.

Miss Grace Harter of Columbus, visited friends here the fore part of the week.

The first proofs of the Adytum pictures, which are being made by Mr. Russell, the Newark photographer, have been received, and are said to be very good.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Morrison of Defiance, were in town the first of the week.

Mrs. S. M. Beeme, who has been making her home in Granville for the past few years, will leave for a few weeks for Portland, Maine, where she will visit her son, Rev. Frank Beeme, for a year.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Welch expect to occupy the house of Mrs. S. M. Beeme on Pearl street, some time in April. Miss Helen Williams will entertain informally a small number of her friends at her home on Saturday evening.

There is always a desire on the part of the public to see something new and novel in the line of theatricals, so "The Blondells," the original "Katzenjammer Kids," have just what is called a big hit. "Through the Center of the Earth" completely fills this vacuum and furnishes a first-class vehicle for the display of talented artists in all lines of the profession. It is the product of fourteen months' of continuous hard work on the part of Edward Blondell and has furnished employment for a small army of scenic artists, mechanics, carpenters, and others during the progress of its construction. It will be seen in this city in all its stupendous magnificence, next Tuesday, March 17th.

NOVEL IDEA FOR PLAY.

In the construction of the comedy, "The Two Merry Tramps," which will be presented here next Wednesday night, March 18th, Mr. Charles Hasty, the author, conceived the original idea of making his leading characters, Clarence and Artie, as impersonated by Wood and Ward, tramps of the Ward McAllister geni, designating them the "deserted millionaires." Throughout the entire performance they appear alternately as leaders of the swell set at summer places, and the always-in-trouble "Happy Hooligans," in search of rest and excitement, their highest aspirations being the production of their Indian Opera, which is given by the entire company during the second act of the play.

Blood Wine Cures Grip, Colds and Consumption

It is almost an absolute certainty that people who guard against the diseases of winter by the prompt use of "Blood Wine," will not have a cold, a cough, or any of the weakening, harassing and fatal ailments that infest every community through the winter months. "Blood Wine" is the safest protection and the most reliable, because it protects all organs of the body—the throat, lungs, kidneys, stomach, liver and bowels, by making the blood so active, rich, healthy, warmth-creating and strengthening that the weakness that forebuds disease never comes. It keeps the system in a natural, healthy state. It corrects irregularities, and drives disease out of the body. "Blood Wine" is a remarkable medicine. It is a reliable medicine. It never disappoints. If kept in the house and taken with the first signs of an approaching cold, cough, soreness of the lungs, croup, rheumatism, bodily fatigue, loss of appetite or general weakness, it will give immediate and lasting relief. A bottle for fifty-cents will

PROTECT YOUR HEALTH

Peter Berry of Pearl Street, Augusta, Maine, a well-known citizen, whose recovery was common talk, owes his life to "Blood Wine." He says it is AN ASTONISHING RECOVERY and adds that it was a surprise to his physician a very bad cold settled on my lungs, causing a most obstinate cough that no medicine could relieve. During several months I suffered untold misery. My lungs grew worse and worse. My physician was baffled and finally told me I would have to go to a warmer climate. I saw "Blood Wine" advertised and made up my mind to try it. After taking it a few weeks during which time I gained rapidly, I was reported out of danger. I continued to take it and it entirely cured me. Those whom I have since advised to take it agree with me that it is a wonderful medicine. Mr. Berry's experience has been duplicated by thousands of people who frankly admit that "Blood Wine" saved their lives.

Miss Nettie Clark of 9 Haven Street, Boston, Mass., TOLD SHE MUST DIE but she didn't. On the other hand, she got well. She had a hard time of it, though, and "Blood Wine" pulled her through. "It any wonder that she made this statement? About six years ago I was taken with a very severe cold which settled on my lungs. I bathed my feet in hot water, took hot sweats, and the other usual remedies, but nothing would lift it from my lungs. It ran along for some time in spite of my efforts to cure it. I sought all medical aid and that none could procure, and I was told I had consumption and that I must die. I then took a bottle of "Blood Wine." I started on it with little faith, but I had a drawing room on I gladly clutched at a straw. A few days later I thought I saw an improvement, so I continued to take it. I was pleased to find that I was sure I was getting better. I took four bottles—now it was quite certain, and I kept on taking it and kept on getting better. I am healthy and happy, have my feet back, can eat a good meal and attend to my business. I think without a doubt, not only standing there are many good medicines that "Blood Wine" is the most far-reaching, penetrating and sure exterminator of germs in the world. I gladly recommend it to all sufferers."

THE RAILWAYS

Death Hand at Throttle.

The New York World says: Observing a disregard of "slow-up" orders at the approach of a dangerous trestle in Ohio on Saturday, the firemen of a mile-a-minute express looked across the cab. His engineer was dead. Only a lifeless hand grasped the throttle. By prompt action the fireman averted the probable horrors of a plunge by the train through the trestle. It is thus that the news of the day furnishes fresh argument for the "two-men-in-the-cab" bills pending before the legislature of New York and New Jersey.

Death's action is not limited by the type of a locomotive. What happened on the ordinary express engine in Ohio can take place at any time on a "freight" machine. But then the engineer will die all by himself in his lone forward cab, and the ever-so-great alertness of a fireman in the rear will be of no avail.

When humanity proposes the railroad corporations may oppose, but should not be allowed to dispose. The "two-men-in-a-cab" bills should pass.

ESTIMATED WORTH $15,000,000.

Highly Prized Collection of Presents to England's Late Queen Will Be Sent by King Edward to America in Charge of a Royal Commission and Heavy Armed Guard.

It needed some such striking fact as King Edward's munificent offer to send the priceless collection of Queen Victoria diamond jubilee presents to the Louisiana Purchase exposition to arouse the British mind to a proper appreciation of the importance of the St. Louis fair, and it has had its effect, says the London correspondent of the New York World.

All London is talking, too, of the appearance at the American society's Washington's birthday banquet of the phlegmatic, unemotional Duke of Devonshire as the eulogist of President Roosevelt. He had never been known before to propose a personal toast to any one; but, to the surprise of all, he became almost enthusiastic over the American chief executive.

At this banquet the central figure was President Francis of the exposition, who has been indefatigable in his work at London to make the St. Louis fair a success. In his private audience with King Edward, Governor Francis was told that the gifts would be sent as the monarch's own mark of intimate sympathy with the American people and in appreciation of their admiration for his mother. It is probable that a royal commission will be appointed and that a heavy guard will be sent with the highly prized treasures to guard them on their way to and from the United States and while they are there.

This magnificent collection of gifts, estimated to be worth at least $15,000,000, created a great stir when shown for the first time in London, and extraordinary precautions were taken for their safety. One of the most superb things in the collection is the gift from the czar, the czarina, the Grand Duke and Duchess of Hesse and Prince and Princess Louis of Battenberg. It is a diamond heart pendant, the center of which is open and occupied by the Slavonic numerals for "sixty," above which is an enormous sapphire and at the sides two drops of the same stones.

Among the numerous rare and wonderful presents from the emperor of China is a bronze altar vessel for wine, square in form, suspended in a framework pierced with metal bearing dates, proving it to have been manufactured about 1,000 years before Christ.

The dowager empress of China sent precious porcelain from the imperial potteries and some autograph scroll paintings, among which was one representing "Eternal Spring Over the Sea Nation."

The shah of Persia's gift is his own photograph in one of the most costly frames ever made. It is of solid gold, with a floral device carried out in large turquoises of flawless color and diamonds.

The Princess of Wales, now Queen Alexandra, together with the Duke and Duchess of York, the Duke and Duchess of Pife and other members of the royal family, gave a splendid diamond brooch, consisting of one immense diamond of rarest luster surrounded by twelve smaller ones.

The German emperor's present is a large silver gift vase surmounted by a figure of Britannia.

The Chinese ambassador sent one of the most unique presents. It depicts marvelously modeled birds in jade, surrounded by bulrushes and water plants standing out in high relief, being to the Chinese mind an allegorical representation of "the spontaneous joy of a myriad nation."

The Prince of Wales, now King Edward, presented to his mother splendid portraits of himself and his brother, the Duke of Connaught, painted by Detaille.

Empress Frederick gave a beautiful paperweight formed of an oblong block of chrysoptase, with the two dates 1837-97, the royal crown and cipher in diamonds and other precious stones.

The emperor of Japan's presents are a finely carved screen with embroidered silk panels and a gold lacquer cabinet.

JAPS BUILD HIS COTTAGES.

William Rockefeller to Have Novel Home in Adirondacks.

William Rockefeller, the Standard Oil millionaire, who has made large purchases of land in the Adirondacks, near St. Regis lake, is erecting two cottages the like of which were never seen in America, says a Watertown (N. Y.) dispatch to the New York World. He recently imported Japanese to build two beautiful Japanese cottages near the lake for use in summer.

All the work is done by Japanese under the supervision of a Japanese architect. The cottages will cost many thousands of dollars. Even American nails are discarded, and as much Japanese materials as can possibly be used are being put in the cottages.

Grateful Parisians.

A number of Parisians who were in the sack have decided to erect a monument to the memory of the pigeons that carried the dispatches which kept up communication with the outside world, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. It will consist of a pedestal surmounted by a bronze vase, on which will be cast a group of the birds that proved of such utility to the French. The gratitude comes somewhat late, for after the war the pigeons in question were sold by auction and commemorated in pigeon pies.

CHANGE FOR THE BETTER.

The Way Physicians Now Treat Catarrh.

Physicians who formerly depended upon inhalers, sprays and local washes or ointments now use Stuart's Catarrh Tablets because as one of the most prominent stated, these tablets contain in pleasant, convenient form all the really efficient and reliable catarrh remedies, such as red gum, blood root and Hydrastis.

They contain no cocaine or opiate (so common in liquid catarrh medicines and cough syrups) and they are given to little children with entire safety and benefit.

Dr. J. J. Reiter says: I suffered from Catarrh in my head and throat every winter and it would hang on clear into summer, with stoppage of the nose and irritation in the throat affecting my voice so that I was continually clearing my throat before I could speak plainly; it finally extended to the stomach causing catarrh of the stomach.

I bought a fifty cent box of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets at my druggist's carried them in my pocket and used them regularly several times a day and the way in which they cleared my head and throat and improved my hearing and general health I consider little short of remarkable. I had no catarrh last winter and spring and know I am entirely free from any catarrhal trouble whatever.

Mrs. Jerome Ellison of Wheeling writes: I suffered from catarrh nearly my whole life and last winter my two children also suffered from catarrhal colds and sore throat so much they were out of school a large part of the winter. My brother who was cured of catarrhal deafness by using Stuart's Catarrh Tablets urged me so much to try them that I sent to the drug store and bought a package and I am truly thankful for what they have done for me and my children. I always keep a box of the tablets in the house and at the first appearance of a cold or sore throat one or two of the catarrh tablets nips it in the bud and Catarrh is no longer a household affliction with us.

HOME FIT FOR A KING

Duchess of Marlborough's New Palace in London.

NOBLE MANSIONS VILAS BESIDE IT

Cost of Blandford House, Being Erected by the Duke in Mayfair, is Already $1,500,000 and End of Outlay is Not in Sight—Halls and Staircases All of Marble.

The palace the Duke of Marlborough is building for himself in the heart of Mayfair recently began to emerge from its swaddling clothes of scaffolding so that it is possible to gain a first idea of its extent and magnificence, writes the London correspondent of the New York World.

It promises to be far and away the finest example of domestic architecture provided for London in recent years. Beside its stately proportions the house that the late Barney Barnato built for himself in Park Lane, but never occupied, is a mere glorified villa, while the brownstone mansion erected by Alfred Beit further up that avenue of millionaires is merely a stunted and dingy edifice.

When it came to be a question of having a town house, the duke determined to have something appropriate to the grandeur and dignity of his titles and descent, as well, of course, as his own position, or nothing at all. Blandford House is a princely structure, princely in style, in position, and, by all accounts, even more princely in cost. It is stated that he paid $380,000 for the freehold site; $320,000 was the original contract for the building, while over $800,000 has already been expended in furniture and decorations, though this is by no means the end of the outlay in that direction.

The house is rectangular in shape, and if it has defect it is that it is too narrow for its length. The front measures 63 feet, while the side measures 109. Greater width was impossible in view of the site chosen, which has the advantage of having a street on all its four sides. Along the whole length of the side runs the picture gallery and ballroom, lighted by eleven stained glass windows, with marble columns supporting a richly carved ceiling. The main entrance is on Curzon street and on the left hand corner. The entrance hall is a fairly wide space opening into a large hall, from which rises the main staircase of white marble. The stairs are of a great width, and after the first six steps are ascended a broad gallery is arrived at, from each side of which winds a double continuation of the stairs, all of marble.

At the point on the stairway where the high stained windows throw a multicolored light over the mosaic floors and marble columns the ceiling rises to a height of thirty feet, and it is here that all the most magnificent carvings will be introduced. Many niches have been left in the walls for the reception of statues, on which numbers of artists are now at work.

There are fifty rooms in all. The duke's writing room and study is on the ground floor, to the right of the entrance. Next to it comes a large and perfectly circular morning room, with three doors, while at the back, running along from one end to the other, is the dining room and servery, with a series of lifts on the most approved American principles, wherewith to convey all edibles from the kitchens below. There are two drawing rooms, on the first floor, one at either end of the house, so as to have the sun or shade at the summer day advances.

From the picture gallery you can have access to either, and a marble balustrade looks over the wide stair that seems designed at many parts to contain cozy seated corners for conversation after dinner. The most modern appointments in billiard rooms, self contained bath and bed rooms, lifts and all other comforts are being provided in a very thorough manner, and the smaller important details of design in the fittings are all made especially by several of the biggest firms in America.

The third floor is devoted to the nurseries, bed, bath and dressing rooms for the young Marquis of Blandford and his little brother, and there are two large playrooms where swings and other recreations may be freely enjoyed. It is somewhat a pity that there is no garden space anywhere about the house, nor is there even a space between the street and the house itself. The open area that will run halfway round the house lights the kitchens and stores below. Fortunately, however, there is a good deal of light from the front.

The decoration of the exterior walls is severely plain and is only relieved by a series of carved marble heads of classical design upon which a number of French and Italian workmen are now engaged. The cornice on each side of the building will weigh 100 tons. For the past two years the duke and duchess have been making extensive purchases on the continent of tapestry and furniture for their new home. The style of decoration will be almost entirely French, and no orders have as yet been placed with the leading London furnishers.

Monument For a Veteran's Grave.

The council of the Cherokee nation has decided to erect a monument to mark the grave of George Lowrey, who played an important part in the affairs of the nation from 1799 to 1859 or thereabout. Lowrey served as captain of horse under Andrew Jackson throughout the war of 1812, and he and his Cherokee fought for the government in subsequent Indian wars.

THE OBSTINATE FLAME.

How and Why You May Blow Out a Candle Backward.

Hold a lighted candle eight or ten inches from your face and blow gently at the flame. Of course the flame will bend over away from you as if it were trying to leave the wick. Blow harder, and the flame will go out. That is to say it will leave the wick and disappear entirely.

Now, let us think about that a little. When you kindle a fire in the grate, the more draft you give it the better it burns. Blow on it, and you will see, or get a pair of old fashioned bellows, such as your grandmother used, and the harder you work them the more quickly the wood ignites and the higher leaps the flame.

Why does this blowing on the fire make it burn better? Simply because you give it more oxygen, and oxygen is what fire lives on.

But in the case of the candle, when you blow hard on it the flame instead of burning more brightly goes out altogether. Do you see the reason? Perhaps this is it. The flame depends upon a sufficient amount of heat to make the oxygen ignite, and a sudden or hard blowing of the breath on it drives the heat away, so that there is not enough left to support combustion.

But there is a way to blow on the candle when within a few inches of your face without blowing it out. Indeed you can make the flame incline toward you instead of away from you. You think of course that there is a trick in this, and you are right. That is why we are telling you about it, so that you may puzzle some of your friends.

Take a piece of wire about ten inches in length and bend it at right angles in the middle. Twist one end of it into a ring that will fit over the candle and bend the other end into a downward loop that may be squeezed together as a clamp. Into this clamp put a piece of cardboard about six inches in diameter and then slip the ring over the candle. If you have adjusted them right, the cardboard will be exactly between your mouth and the flame when you hold the candle up before your face.

Now blow on the cardboard as hard as you can, but you cannot blow the candle out; on the contrary, the flame will incline toward you, just as if some one were blowing it in that direction. The reason is that the air you blow on the cardboard rebounds and carries with it some of the air around the flame, and this of course brings the flame toward the board.

Learn to Do Only Work That Pays.

Digging in the soil and chopping wood is hard work, but it requires no special skill; hence the wages paid are the smallest. The pay increases in proportion to the thought and skill required. Learn a good trade, and it will be with you when your friends and money are gone. Few boys take to tasks that require thought and persistent effort. Yet skilled work is the only employment in demand. Hod carriers and common laborers glut the market everywhere. The tradesmen and artisans are the ones that get the easiest jobs and the most money. The others are always hunting work. Should they accidentally stumble upon a job they cannot hold it. A superficial knowledge will not do. It must be thorough. Boys, learn a trade while young. After you are twenty years old few will be found who will take time and trouble to teach you one. When you are that old, you will want a man's pay. If you don't know anything, you won't get it. Know nothings work at odd jobs and are paid the lowest scale.—Gom.

Lighting the Stars.

Mabel Greene, a Brooklyn five-year-old, one evening stood at a window of her home with her pretty face flattened against the pane intently watching a slowly gathering storm. Darker grew the low hanging clouds, but Mabel showed no signs of fear. Instead her features were animated and she appeared to be absorbed in the scene. Even when a violent clap of thunder seemed to rend the heavens and forked lightning flashed the child was unmoved. At last, tiring of the sight, Mabel turned to her mother sitting near. "Mamma," she said, "I think God is getting ready to light his stars."

"Why, darling?"

"Cause he's scratchin' matches on the sky."

Went Too Far.

He had a bundle of papers under his arm and was standing near a railway station weeping.

"What is the matter, my boy?" said a pleasant faced gentleman.

"If I go home without selling my papers, my father and mother will beat the life out of me."

"That's bad."

"Yes, sir; but the worst of it is I am an only child."

"Yes," replied the philanthropist, allowing a coin to drop back into his pocket. "It doesn't often happen that a boy has such bad luck."—Chums.

The ARIZONA KICKER

Breezy Items From the Pen of a Fearless Editor

[Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.]

It is remarked in a St. Louis paper that the game of poker would never have been known in this town but for our efforts. We reply that it was here and in full swing when we arrived, and the only part we have played in the matter has been a losing one. We have never had an ace full that some one else hadn't fours to beat us.

We do not know the name of the man who waylaid us last Tuesday night on Cochise place as we were returning home from Mrs. McGee's tea, but as he was limping when he disappeared in the darkness we are willing to pay a doctor for digging the bullet out of his leg.

It is stated in a Buffalo paper that we have made four different attempts to assassinate the editor of the other weekly paper published in this town. Here we laugh. It is a well known fact that our esteemed colleague has pegged away at us about three times a week for the last five years, but up to date has not even cut a button from our coat.

We find in a Montana paper the statement that we make a practice of killing at least two Chinamen each month in the year. Sing Lee has been with us for the last five years as pressman and is alive and well today, and all communications on this subject can be addressed to him.

It was reserved for a Detroit newspaper to announce that we stood by and laughed in fustian glee while a grizzly bear ate up a companion who was hunting with us. We have never hunted the grizzly. We have never seen one, dead or alive, in this territory. In fact, we have not seen a bear of any species, and, as for "fustian glee," we couldn't come within forty rods of it if we tried ever so hard.

A Baltimore paper gives credence to the report that we shot men dead in their tracks for refusing to subscribe to our paper. This is an original way of building up a circulation, and we call the attention of our contemporaries to it.

An Ohio editor has learned from a reliable source that we are constantly surrounded by a bodyguard of twelve desperate men and but for that fact we would be lynched within an hour. If that editor saw us strolling around town, with our hands clasped under our coats, he'd probably invent some other canard.

We bought another mountain the other day, making five that we now own, and if any of our esteemed eastern contemporaries can spare a couple of weeks this winter we will give them no end of sliding down hill on the trail of grizzly bears. We believe we are the only editor in the world owning five mountains and each and all of them wild and untamable.

We proceeded to the general offices of the Girardam Gulch Stage company the other day and leveled two guns on the president and demanded that our annual pass be renewed. After a bluff or two it was renewed. It always is, but we have to go through the same old program year after year.

The fact that we now and then take a hand in a game of poker is not considered by the postmaster general to be against our usefulness as postmaster, and the people who are trying to make a handle of it might as well save their breath.

A Tucson paper announces that we have the cheek to aspire to the governorship of Arizona. "Tis true, and we'll bet a hat that we get there; afterward—the presidency! We are a critic of such aims and ambitions that it makes our hair stand up now and then.

FIND HIDDEN SAILOR AND A BOOT.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

To Clean Range and Oilcloth.

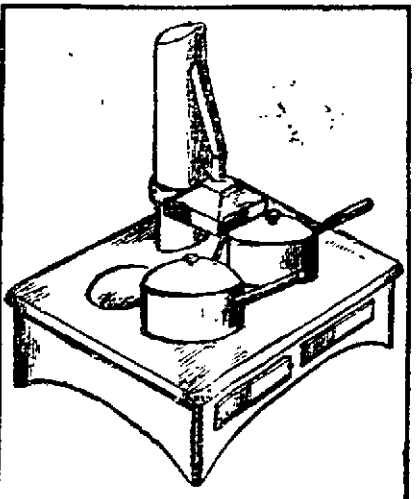

I wash top of my range with soap and clean water, never with dishwater. Do not try to keep top of range or stove black. It is simply wasting your time. Paint sides and pipe with stovepipe enamel. It will last a year, can be washed with soap and water and sponged with a thin glue water it will be a glistening black. I wash my oilcloth with warm water and soap. I used to wash it without soap, as I read so much about soap spoiling it, but it did not look as clean as I thought it ought to, so I tried washing it with soap and drying with a dry cloth, rubbing it till it was dry. After I got through I go over it with a sponge wet in thin glue water, and it gives it a nice, shiny appearance and is easier to wash next time. I have treated my oilcloth this way for two years. I have the half of my kitchen covered with it and it is good yet. I don't think soap hurts oilcloth if it is wiped with a dry cloth till it is perfectly dry.—Mrs. L. Lute in Practical Farmer.

Hungarian Kidney.

Wash very thoroughly a good sized fresh beef kidney, and with a sharp knife cut off the outer portion of each lobe, rejecting all fat and tubes and the purplish appearing portions. Put two tablespoonsful of butter into a saucepan, and when hot add the pieces of kidney and shake and cook fast for ten minutes. Add four tablespoonsful of rich beef stock or gravy, two tablespoonsful of lemon juice, a tablespoonful of finely chopped mushrooms, and salt and pepper to taste. Cover and cook slowly for ten minutes. Mix together the yolks of two raw eggs and two-thirds of a cup of milk; add to the contents of the saucepan and stir until the sauce begins to thicken. Then take up on a heated dish and serve at once.

To Carry Off Odors.

Our illustration shows an invention which will be appreciated not only by the cook in the kitchen, but by every one who has chances to be in a house where onions, cabbage or other ill smelling vegetables were being prepared for a meal, for no matter how much we enjoy the cooked food there is no denying that the odor while in the pot is offensive and disagreeable to the nostrils. Alfred Anderson of Fra-

THE STOVE HOOD.

zee, Minn., has undertaken to catch the bad odors and pass them up the chimney instead of allowing them to permeate all parts of the house. His invention consists of a metallic hood suspended above the stove and having an entrance directly into the pipe which leads to the chimney. Each cooking pot is provided with a cover having a tube extending from one side, through which the vapors are passed directly into the hood. Should the boiling up of the contents of the pot elevate the cover the resulting puff of steam is also drawn into the hood by means of draft conduits arranged around the interior of the hood the suction of air into the conduits being stimulated by the steam rising in the chimney, through the tubes in the covers of the pots.

Doughnuts.

Risen doughnuts are made with a cup of butter, two cups of sugar, a pint of sweet milk, two eggs, three-quarters of a cup of yeast, one and a half teaspoonfuls of nutmeg or mace, a teaspoonful of cinnamon, and a half teaspoonful of salt, flour to make as stiff as bread dough, cream, butter and sugar. Add milk, yeast and about one quart of flour. Set to rise over night. In the morning beat eggs very light and stir into the batter with the spices and rest of flour. Let rise three hours or until light, roll into a pretty thick sheet, cut out and fry in boiling lard. Sift powdered sugar over them while hot.

Easily Made Candy.

Children always delight in pink and white "peppermint" candy. It is harmless and sometimes so beneficial that the most careful of mothers may give it to their little ones. A simple and yet good way to make it is to dissolve two cupfuls of granulated sugar in a half cupful of water. As soon as the sugar is melted remove the spoon and boil the sirup eight minutes. Then remove from the fire, add seven drops of oil of peppermint and beat vigorously until the sirup is thoroughly creamed. Drop by teaspoonfuls on to waxed paper.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Cleaning Carpets.

The modern steam cleaning of carpets is not so good as that of older days, as the airing is desirable. In cleaning a carpet it should be laid on the grass, face down, and then well beaten from the back. This causes the dirt to drop out of the loops where it is so deeply imbedded. Brushing the surface with a broom removes the lighter particles, and washing with a cloth wet in diluted ammonia will both clean and freshen the surface.

"All right," responded a member of the class. "Show us how to get them."

A Swift Repentance

I was cashier of Scott's state bank, and Mr. Scott and the public had every confidence in me. Nevertheless I determined to avail myself of my opportunities to ride the safe and skip out. Between the 4th and 11th of September I arranged the details for my flight and concluded to work them out on the night of the 13th. On that evening at half past 5 the night watchman notified me that his wife had died. I excused him from watching that night.

At 7 o'clock I went to the bank, pulled down the shades, lighted the gas and in the course of twenty minutes had packed every dollar in the vaults into a satchel provided for the purpose. This satchel I placed on a chair outside the railing and had sat down for a smoke when there was a rap at the door. I knew it was one of our force, but hardly expected to see the president himself.

"I expected it was you," he said as he entered; "always the last to go. You are working too hard and must take a rest. At a meeting of the board today it was decided to give you a month's leave and a gift of $500 cash."

I don't remember what I said in reply, but I do remember that something like horror seized upon me at the idea of my own baseness. Right here within reach of his hand was the money I intended to flee with, and yet he was lavish in his praise of my integrity. He remained only a brief time, and soon after his departure I went outside to walk about and plan a little. I hadn't given up the idea of robbery and flight, but a still, small voice was whispering to me when a hand was laid on my arm, and I turned to confront the leading merchant of the town.

"Look here," he said as we walked along arm in arm. "I've always done business with Gleason because I found everything all right, but I'm going to begin with you tomorrow. Gleason is as good as gold himself, but I don't fancy his new cashier. He's a high roller, I hear, and some day he may turn up missing with all the boodle he can carry. No fear of that in your case."

And I had $107,000 all packed up and was only waiting for train time to become a robber.

"Everybody is speaking in your praise," he continued, "and you deserve all that is said. Just keep a level head and you'll find the road to honor and wealth."

When he left me, I had to lean against a dead wall for support. The sound of his footsteps was still in my ears when I suddenly felt that I was saved. There had been a terrible struggle of conscience, but right had triumphed at last. I was pulling myself together to return to the bank when a woman accosted me by name and said: "How lucky I happened to see you. I was on my way down to Black's to see if he wouldn't take charge of this package till tomorrow. It's money I got only two hours ago—$2,000."

"Come in here, and I'll give you a receipt."

"Never mind that. We all know you and trust you."

Her parting words gave me a shiver. How little they knew me. I had one more trial to undergo. Almost at the door of the bank I met two business men of high standing who were holding an animated conversation.

"Hear the news?" queried one as I came up.

"What is it?"

"You remember the clerk in my brother's office in Philadelphia who skipped out two years ago with $30,000? Well, he's been overhauled. He went to Peru, no doubt expecting to have grand times. It seems that everybody soon knew he was a thief, and he was an object of contempt. He wandered about, always a marked man, and at last was so overcome with shame and degradation that he asked to be arrested and sent back. He was despised, insulted and plundered, and he did not have one hour's solid comfort out of his funds. He will go to prison for ten or fifteen years, and he might as well die then. Say, isn't it a curious thing that men will so destroy themselves?"

"Take your own case," added the other as he placed a hand on my shoulder. "You are young, but respected, trusted and honored and on the sure road to wealth. You might crib $100,000 from the bank and get away, but would that compensate you for the sacrifice? No. Even a million wouldn't. I tell you, the man who has got to outlaw himself to enjoy his plunder must see days when he would almost give his life to be set back in the position he once held."

I passed on into the bank and carefully locked the door behind me. My knees were so weak that I had to rest for a good twenty minutes. Even my hair was sopping wet with perspiration.

When I felt strong enough, I carried the satchel to the vault, opened the doors and replaced the money, and it was not until the iron doors were locked again that I felt sure I had won.

There would be no watchman that night. I had planned it so. I took off my coat, kicked off my shoes and made myself comfortable in an armchair. I did not feel sleepy, but when the day porter came at 7 in the morning to relieve the watchman I was sound asleep. It had got to the ears of the officers that I had sacrificed my night because of the death of the watchman's wife, and the president feebly said:

"Bless the dear boy! He's a man out of a million!"

Am I still cashier? Well, never mind about that. I am still regarded as an honest man, and I doubt if you could make any of my business friends believe that I had ever been tempted for an instant.

Lewis Nixon, the New York ship-builder and politician, was born at Leesburg, Va. In Leesburg, which is not a teeming metropolis at the best, the great day of the year is when the March court is in session. Then all the farmers for miles come in and the town is really lively.

"Last summer," said a Virginian, "a prominent citizen of Leesburg went to New York. He called on Mr. Nixon. He was cordially received and taken out to see the sights. Mr. Nixon drove up Broadway with him. When they came to the corner of Twenty-third street the Virginian, who had been gazing with open mouthed astonishment at the crowds, asked, 'Say, Lewis, what's going on here today, anyhow?'"

"Oh, nothing," Nixon replied; "nothing out of the ordinary."

"You don't tell me," said the Virginian. He thought for a minute and then said, 'Say, Lewis, if all these people are here when nothing special is going on, what a crowd there must be for the March court!'"

The Sign Harris Put Up.

A. H. Harris of North Carolina, who has been here promoting the Appalachian forest reserve plan, was formerly a lawyer in St. Louis, says a Washington correspondent. One day he left his office to go to luncheon and hung a sign, "Back In Twenty Minutes," on the door. He never did go back, for while he was out he received a business offer from North Carolina and left for that state at once.

When Harris entered the house restaurant the other day, the first man he saw was Representative Joy of St. Louis, who had the next office to him twenty years ago and whom he had not seen since.

"I thought you were coming back in twenty minutes," said Joy.

"Well," Harris replied, "I meant twenty-two years. For I shall be there for the world's fair in 1904."

Senator Nelson's Cigar Holder.

Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota is using a queer looking contrivance for a cigar holder. He says in regard to it: "A few years ago I secured a position for a young man in the census office, and every one in awhile he thinks it is time to remind me that he still appreciates the favor. At first he used to send me cigars, valuable ones—and I finally remunerated him for spending his money needlessly. Then he took to sending me cigar holders. The bowl of this one is made from the cork of a champagne bottle, while the stem is fashioned from the hollow bone of a turkey wing. You never saw anything like it before did you? It looks a trifle queer, but it makes a fine smoke out of a cheap cigar."

Secret of President Roosevelt's Popularity Among Them.

WIDE READING AND GOOD MEMORY

He Knows Something About Politics and History of Every European Nation—How He Surprised Mme. Hengelmueller by His Knowledge of Poland.

No president who has occupied the White House within memory has made so agreeable an impression upon members of the diplomatic colony as President Roosevelt, writes the New York Commercial Advertiser's Washington correspondent. Indeed it is doubtful whether among the reigning sovereigns of Europe there is one who is so thoroughly at home in discussing with the representatives of other nations just the questions in which those representatives happen to be particularly interested. The German emperor may be an exception, for his mental activities are said to be almost boundless. As for the others—so members of the foreign colony in Washington say—not one of them can compare with the president of the United States. There are very few questions about which President Roosevelt does not know something. He has been a voracious reader ever since he was a boy, and he has always been passionately fond of history and biography. His memory is tenacious and encyclopedic. Whatever information once gets into his mind sticks there, ready to be called on at a second's notice. No president since John Quincy Adams has begun to compare with him in the extent of his general knowledge of questions not immediately concerned with American politics and history. He knows something about the politics and history of every nation in Europe, even the most insignificant, and he at times displays a familiarity with them which is as surprising to their representatives in Washington as it is gratifying.

The wife of the Austrian ambassador, Von Hengelmueller, is a native of Poland. If there is a region in Europe about which most American public men have vague and hazy notions, it is Poland. Everybody knows something about Kosciuszko and how freedom shrieked when he fell, and that is about the limit. But it happens that in the course of his reading the president has picked up a lot of information about Poland and about the old Polish families. He knows their relationship to one another and the part they have played in Polish history, so that when Mme. von Hengelmueller happens to be placed beside him at dinner he can talk to her about her own people with a familiarity and with a just appreciation which fill her with astonishment and delight.

So with M. Jusserand, the new French ambassador. M. Jusserand is a litterateur of high rank in his own country and has an international reputation, although comparatively few Americans probably have ever read much that he has written. He has made a special study of early English literature and has written upon it with great ability and with fine discrimination. When he came to talk with the president, he was flattered and overjoyed to find that Mr. Roosevelt had read everything he had ever written about early English literature, Piers Ploughman and the rest, and the two conversed with enthusiasm for a long time upon topics congenial to both which have no bearing whatever upon international relations. Sir Michael Herbert and Baron von Sternburg of course are old friends, dating back to the days when the president was an under official in Washington, and all the other diplomatic representatives in Washington find their personal relations with the occupant of the White House exceptionally pleasant.

The representative of a different type of individual to whom the president appeals even more strongly than to the diplomats was in Washington recently—Seth Bullock, the sheriff of Deadwood, S. D. Bullock is as fine a specimen of the frontiersman as could be found anywhere, with long, drooping mustaches, aquiline nose and hawklike eye. Bullock came on to visit the president and brought with him Mrs. Bullock. They were invited to the German musicale at the White House the other evening, the president having warned Seth in advance not to "shoot the fiddle." Seth was immensely taken with the German choruses. After the entertainment was over Senator Lodge asked him what he thought of it. "It was fine," was the reply. "I liked it. It took me a little higher up the gulch than I'd ever been before, but I liked it." Seth would go through fire and water for the president, and the president would do the same for him.

Congressman's Law Practice Restful.

Several members of the house were discussing their plans for the coming summer in Speaker Henderson's room the other morning when General Henderson turned to Representative Gaines of Tennessee, says the Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune, and said:

"How are you going to spend your summer, Gaines?"

"I intend to take a rest, an absolute rest," was the reply.

"That means that you will resume your law practice, I presume," remarked the speaker, and a shout of laughter greeted the presumption.

It's the grease of cod liver oil, which so many people who recognize the great value of cod liver oil, can't "go." But in Hage's Cordial of Cod Liver Oil they find just what they desire—all the good, without the grease, effect is gratifying. 2

WHY THE COOK STAYED.

Mrs. Newbridge—How does Mrs. Henry Peck manage to keep that cook of hers?

Mrs. Oldhand—She threatens to leave, but Mrs. Peck would not give a recommendation, and she wouldn't go without one—and they are both stubborn.—Judge.

Keep your temper; no one wants it and you may need it.
